

Why mess with a good thing? How is offering satellite radio weather and other services a bad thing for consumers? Is it because the land based services are having a tough time competing with others land based stations? Too bad! That is what competition is all about. The land based ones need to provide digital services that add value. Tell me why you need to limit what XM radio offers to its subscriber base?